I Believe Abortion Should Be Pro-Choice

Picture this 15-year-old Dimple Mae Ferolino became pregnant at the age of 15 years old. Her mother abandoned her so she went and cared for her grandparents. She and her partner only finished Grade 7, and they both became unemployed and you left their education. Now in this case you would allow or urge a 15-year-old to bring that child into the world. While she can't even take care of herself. I beg to differ, I believe that abortion should be pro-choice. There are three reasons I will discuss why I believe this is the correct path. Reason one is certain circumstances would put the baby in danger. The second reason is that the child can be born and raised in poverty. Lastly, it should be their decision to voice whether or not they want to have the baby.

As you can see in the story I shared in the beginning. That is just one of the situations that can or have been taking place. Some women did not choose to have a baby, and they were forced into it. Plenty of stories I heard personally that they got raped and, had to have a baby at a young age. Let us not disregard having a baby at the wrong time. The wrong person can be very detrimental to the child. What good does it do to bring an innocent child? What good does it do to bring an innocent child to the world to a place where they or wouldn't be treated with the love and care and support that he or she truly deserves?

This brings me to my next point: unplanned children, particularly those born out of wedlock, have contributed to high rates of child poverty in us. Which can lead to the child not being well taken care of. Also, it can lead to the parents resenting their child. When the parent resents his child the relationship with the child wouldn't be positive, because it was not well prepared for. I was raised in humble beginnings but my father and mother worked together to get me here. This result is only because they both wanted me. Now picture if they did not want me, my future would be in danger.

Lastly, I believe that should be their decision to make. I feel this way because whoever the parents may be, they are the ones that are going to change their lives to see if they can afford an innocent child. Scientifically speaking the child stays in a bloodline till at least 7 weeks. They do not get knowledgeable about what's going on. Although I believe people should take responsibility for their actions. I still strongly believe that you should be allowed a second chance if you are not ready. This child should not be welcomed on this earth by someone taking a chance to love them. The child should be welcomed by a stable and welcomed family.

In conclusion, I believe in abortion should be pro-choice. I believe that it should be both parents that make that decision. Whether to keep the baby or have an abortion. As disappointed as it may sound to not have the child. It's even more unfortunate to have the child and put it through the misery that it truly does not deserve.
