

Dayeo Kim

Dr. David Emanuel

BIB 102

02/021/2023

The term Ten Commandments is derived from the Hebrew word "Acheret Hardbarim" (ten words), referred to in Exodus 34:28, Deuteronomy 4:13 and 10:4. The Ten Commandments, which seemed like a very simple command with only ten, rather than ten, contain a vast amount of content that cannot be compared to the past when thinking about and applying their meanings. Of course we must abide by the Ten Commandments.

The 10 commandments have a very large amount and subject to study for this, and there should be efforts to constantly remember and apply them in our lives, not just to stop studying academically. This is because the Ten Commandments are holy orders that all God's people, regardless of nation, time, place, and bloodline, must obey. Therefore, we must continue to study the Ten Commandments and make various efforts to apply them. To keep the Ten Commandments is to love God. I thought about whether I should keep the Ten Commandments. Man can never obey all of the Ten Commandments perfectly.

I thought if it is obvious that we will fail if we try to keep the Ten Commandments, is it necessary to try to keep them even though we do not have the ability to obey those who are corrupted by sin? I think man was built in a state that could obey God's law. The first purpose of God's law is to show what his law is and to realize our sins in light of it. The Ten Commandments reflect our incompetence and sinful nature of not living according to God's will. And the second is the use of suppressing sin. We continue to remember the Ten Commandments and do not commit our sins and will always remember them. I think the heart of the Ten Commandments lies in the New Testament. Nine of the Ten Commandments are mentioned in the New Testament. Therefore, compliance with the Ten Commandments is emphasized in the New Testament.

It is accepted as a Christian truth that only Jesus can be saved. Then, I wonder how Christ was saved in the Old Testament era when he had not yet come. In the New Testament, salvation refers to the escape from the snare of sin set by Satan through forgiveness of sin. Salvation from the suppression of Satan or the devil is a concept developed in a spiritual sense. However, in the Old Testament, salvation mostly means escaping the oppression of the enemy or natural disasters. It is first to be saved by faith in God, and then to do God's work.

Therefore, the Old Testament was saved only by those who believed in Jesus. The principle of salvation of the people of the Old Testament was no different from that of the New Testament era. The core of salvation in the Old Testament is obedience. We may wonder if we can ever be saved. But people in the Old Testament believed that the Bible was a promise. They agonized over the problem of impure species. And there was faith in grace. The principle of salvation of the people of the Old Testament was no different from that of the New Testament era. The core of salvation in the Old Testament is obedience. We may wonder if we can ever be saved. But people in the Old Testament believed that the Bible was a promise. In the Old Testament, when

God's people sinned, they could be forgiven for the sin if they repented and caught sheep or cattle and sacrificed them according to the law set by God.

In conclusion, I hope to continue to look at the law, especially the Ten Commandments given to us. We have to listen, learn, learn, and live with life. The God of love helps and saves us even in those things, but the most important thing is salvation from death, the ultimate predicament among human plight. It is not just a physical death, but a spiritual death in which the right relationship with God is broken. I pray that I will live in the faith of Jesus Christ, the savior who completed the law for me. And as a believer saved by grace, I love God's law, and I believe that the word will be the back of my feet and the light of my path every day.

Work cited

“New International Version (NIV) - Version Information - BibleGateway.com.” Bible Gateway, <https://www.biblegateway.com/versions/New-International-Version-NIV-Bible/>.