

Orlando Martinez

Professor Perez

Our America

Feb 22, 2023

The history of the American Indian is very significant. The history of the museum and purpose is to show and inform people about the American Indian and all the Natives that were here in America. Museums like this that are free are great for the community, that way people can enjoy a good time and be informed about very important history. This museum really caught my eye, on how they lived.

The museum had really beautiful exhibits, what stood out to me the most was their weapons and their clothes. Seeing the Taino Indian because im Puerto Rican which it is awesome to see, it showed everything about the Native Americans and just how everything is connected. This made the case for me because I often wondered how natives got to the Americas and it made sense that when there was a land bridge they came through, populating all of the Americas.

Many staff like the security guards were very serious and did not say much, and I understand their job is mainly just security. They were not really educated in the museum at all. They are just doing their job which I understand but they should be well educated about the museum. Something new I learned while I was here was the sport of lacrosse I knew it came from the Natives but I didn't know it came from the Natives in New York.