Week 7

Conservatism- This idea wanted to reestablish the hereditary monarch in the countries that held strong monarchical governments, in order to control the people.

Classical Liberalism- Is the belief that the people needed to have more say in government, which would lead to more freedoms.

Nationalism- Is the belief that a group of people identify themselves by culture as opposed to geographical location.

Utopian Socialism- The idea that small countries can be created to work towards the good of the community.

Romanticism- Is about emotions and experiencing the world through feeling, not scientific rationality.
