Throughout history ideologies have been used to create, express or form a sense of belonging, community, and establish things in a society or civilization. Therefore, these ideas have different perspectives on how art, government or rational thinking should be performed or done. Ideologies such as conservatism was the after effect of the Napoleon order where the ideas were established and inspired by the past as hereditary monarchies as these represent a stable and continuous line of government. Classical liberalism: which is based on the ideas of the enlightenment such as rational thinking and people were more involved on how government should be done and people have more freedom. Nationalism: Is one of the ideas that was created during the Napoleonic era, this was an ideology that created a sense of belonging and community and working together for a determinate purpose. Nationalism is one of the ideologies that many countries use today to create unity among their people. Being raised in France I think it is one of the places where it is more noticeable where the government uses it not to unite the people but to strengthen those bonds of national pride. Utopian Socialism: These can be of the ideologies that many western countries have rejected. In this ideology everyone is equal and all the work is done for the wellbeing of everyone (community). Romanticism: This was a reaction to the enlightenment movement where ideas should be determined not by rationality but emotions. This was an idea that was very welcome by artists throughout Europe.
