Briefly describe an area of challenge/setback, with respect to a goal-objective in your Contract:

There really isn't one particular area that stands out to me except just balancing my time to be productive and get all my work done. This is the first semester I am juggling work and school and the early rising on work days has been rough. I wish I had more time in my day.

Briefly describe which ministry areas you believe are your greatest strengths so far:

I have a heart of gold and full of compassion and empathy for the sick and dying. I was blessed with superior bedside manner and have an ear that can hear the sadness news without shedding a tear. Not saying when I get home I do not let it all out, but my composer is strong and dependable for death and dying.

Briefly describe which ministry areas you believe are your most serious weaknesses so far:

Time management- It is hard for me to say no to these patients and we should only be giving 20 min tops each person, where the average is 5. Min. I need to be able to kindly tell the patient I have others to see and I will try to return at a later time, if possible.

I use dictionary.com many times in this vocation. I want my logs to be typed professionally and have a lasting effect on whoever reads them. I also go to medical dictionaries. Every morning I read Carrol Stuhmuller's Daily reflections and the Upper Room to inspire me. The Bible is a tool I love to have under my belt. I also just keep pounding away at my school books. The Church Culture class this semester has been so helpful.

9. Briefly describe any areas in which you desire to see change in your relationship / interaction with your Mentor:

I wish my mentor would communicate more openly with the other workers, I feel like I am the middle man and he relies on me to show others the way, when I am just an intern myself.

10. What can you be doing to make this Field Ed experience more fruitful or helpful to the development of your soul, character, skills, etc.?

I have to keep praying over this and ask God for His guidance and understanding, I have been so confident and have come so far this year in growth and spirituality. I feel confident to be able to stand firm on God's word and love to be the best fit wherever God needs me.

11. What can your Mentor / internship site be doing to make this Field Ed experience more fruitful or helpful to the development of your soul, character, skills, etc.?

I understand any faults they have this year because I am in the first round of this experience for the Health and Hospital community. Like I said up top I just want to see more communication of all the employees and have the program work for the common good of all involved.
