

Alliance University
Cheryl Phenicie School of Nursing
NURSING CARE PLAN

Student's Name: Sunita Paltoo

Nursing Diagnosis:

P – Risk for hypoglycemia

E - Baby resisting latching of the breast

S -

Patient's Initials: TE

Date: 01/27/23

Admitting Diagnosis: Newborn

| Expected Outcomes | Nursing Intervention | Rationales | Evaluation |
|--|---|---|--|
| The mother demonstrates proper methods of breastfeeding newborn is able to latch on properly neonate is feeding every 2-3hrs throughout hospitalization. | 1. Educate parents on benefits of breast feeding 2. Educate mother on several positions to breast feed. 3. Explain to mother how to roll nipples between fingers before feeding. 4. Demonstrate how to use a breast pump. 5. Keep baby on a feed schedule 2-3 hrs. 6. Encourage the mother to get enough sleep drink plenty of water and eat well. | 1. Parents are aware of the benefit from breast milk. 2. Provide comfort for both mom and baby promote better feeding times. 3. Mother demonstrates erecting nipple for easy latching. 4. Storage of milk helps support in feeding neonate when mother is unable too. 5. Risk for glucose drop if feeding is not kept up. 6. To ensure that adequate milk production the breastfeeding process are maintained. | Goal met, mother demonstrated proper breastfeeding technique, within 2hrs of hospital stay newborn latches to both breasts comfortably. Neonate, showed no signs and symptoms of hypoglycemia glucose level maintain 50-110mg/dl |

Reference:

Belleza, M. (2021, April 22). Breastfeeding 101: Advantages, issues & nurse management. Nurseslabs. <https://nurseslabs.com/breastfeeding-101/>

Breastfeeding Success. (2020, February 20). Lactation care plans. The Breastfeeding Success Company. <https://www.bfsuccess.com/lactation-care-plans/>