    Last Clinical, Honestly this semester's clinical was way better than last semester. I had the opportunity to really learn in every way possible because the nurses were so willing to let us shadow them. Even when they saw we were not with them at moments they would come find us and tell us exactly what they are about to do, so we can go and watch or help with what they are doing. This last clinical my patient was a lot but not in a negative way. She just needed help with minor things, like opening containers on her food trays, and helping her adjust her bed and a few times not finding her call button. Honestly in those situations I would be annoyed but I feel the effect of being in a hospital setting didn't make me feel that way. Because every person in the care of a hospital needs all the help they can get. I was able to practice the process of giving medication with my nurse, also the nurse trusted me again to get the vital signs of her patients and put them into the system. I can say again that my patient was comfortable with me and now I know the most important aspect of nursing is giving your patients the best care possible and getting them comfortable with you. The patient being comfortable with you makes giving them care so much smoother. A bio-ethical issue i had was i went into one of the other patients room not my patient, i went in because the call light was on. When i was leaving the room i saw the blue bag that was used to put dirty linen and had dirty linen in it. It wasn't near the patient but it should not be in the room at all. So I took care of that situation. "He will wipe away every tear from their eyes, and death shall be no more, neither shall there be mourning, nor crying, nor pain anymore, for the former things have passed away." And He who was seated on the throne said, "Behold, I am making all things new." Revelation 21:4 This quote shows that God knows there might have been struggles in the past but he will help you forget them and move on to new and better things.
