The global network for my part has facilitated the turn of things, from travel to foreign languages, to food, to the use of any effect of our daily life. For what? simply because the import and export having become something palpable therefore adapt to all the needs of man. thanks to this tax and export network, the man manages to do a lot without having to move. for example when I take the case of the internet which is a very essential tool for the development of the continents we manage to work from one country to another which was impossible in the previous years. we even manage to sign documents remotely. technology has revolutionized the world so that everything that was difficult or even impossible for man has become very possible. for us immigrants who are in countries like the USA, the advancement of technology helps us to communicate with our families as if we were side by side thanks to the telephone and applications like whatsapp, snapchat, messenger, facetime. meal side we can count mangoes, avocados, fish which are foods that are not necessarily from the United States but from other countries such as China (telephone, fish) Mexico (mangoes and avocados) clothing (Turkey and Dubai) wines (France and Italy) cafe, Cacao (Africa) for consumer products, and the legality of its products. naturally its products are not directly in the stores in which we pay for them. there is a whole procedure to follow before the products are put on sale. hence the verification of authentication for branded products, for example, the quantity for consumer products, and the legality of its products. this during there can also be the calculation of the rate of return, the verification of the demand (I want to say if the demand for consumption of this product and strong or bah) In reality, my life without the global network will be very sad and I would say miserable because everything was going to be slowed down in my life. my parents are my booster hearing their voices gives me the courage and the strength to fight against the detractors of my life (problem) without the telephone and the internet what would I be? I don't know myself. also, since I'm crazy about the dishes from home, how would my mother bring the ingredients to prepare them? no idea, I'll probably settle for anything I find on the streets here, whether it's good or not.
