

I choose English: Robert Scholes from this response, what I learned from this reading is this how author analyzed English writing is literature and non-literature, and how he label literature is good or important, label non-literature is the production or the consumption, and more to label real or academic to our own disadvantage, just for how it produce literature, and finally, more to label creative writing or interpretation, and all of this is to show how it can to be write in English writing, and finally the writer try to show connections among the parts, it is creative writing to the field of English, just for it is literature or non-literature.

Also I learned how literature and non-literature impact what we can write, even though it is a little hard to understand for me.

And for Sample Analyses from Different Disciplines, I choose Earth Sciences: An Analysis of an Earthquake, it just simple, he analyzed earthquake is biggest devastating natural disasters, and why earthquake's physical is simple and powerful, just for let me know how earthquake is dangerous.
