I would like to say the people that raised me were my parents but there were more people that went into the person that I am today than just my mom and dad. The two other women that help to form the woman I am today would be both of my grandmothers, that is my mom's mom and dad's mom. My mother's mom's name is Theresa but she goes by Terri and she is alive and well and living in Summerfield Fl. My father's mother passed when I was only 16 years old so that was about almost twenty years ago. I have a special place in my heart for my mother and my grandmothers. They always encouraged reading and writing especially as punishments. I'm so happy that they encouraged us as kids to write to them instead of hitting us and using physical punishment. I think they really showed love when they did these things not to say they were perfect and so were us kids because it was far from perfect but the efforts were there.
