Who has helped to form me?

Growing up and going to School I was in a cooperative work program that started when I was in my junior year this program is where you would go to school one week and work the next week but during that time, you were to complete two weeks of homework. The place I received my first start in the working world was Manhattan a company called Bowne and company it's a corporate and financial printing company that deals with the stock exchange. The department I started in was labeling boxes that were being shipped out to other companies. My supervisor had worked there for a while at the time I started she was a very nice and helpful lady, and she helped me and others in the group from the program she would show us how to maintain orders that were ordered and how to correctly file sales slips and how to operate office machines like a paper copier it was always interesting when we were there. I especially enjoyed the free lunches after the corporate meetings it was always catered. Most importantly the supervisor made sure we completed our two weeks' worth of homework because if we didn't, we as students would be terminated from the program and that would affect our grades and graduation I always appreciated my supervisor she sometimes gave us typing test too if it was not for her, teaching I think I would have chosen a different field of work which would have been sewing because that's what my grandmother's hobby was another person who formed me, my grandmother, who helped me to make my prom gown when it was time for my graduation it was a simple straight long gown with a shawl, but I was proud that she helped me with it was my one-of-a-kind creation and it saved me money I just needed to get shoes and a purse I miss the supervisor and my grandmother they always said try to help someone in need and never be ashamed of who or how you are and to never travel anywhere without having your own money in case you need to leave I appreciate the work lessons that were set upon me from two women that help to mold me as I grew up and be the person I am who hopes to inspire and to pass on some knowledge to my children and also it can hopefully help someone else I may meet in my surroundings daily too.
