I have done much personal invest in this subject prior to this. Delving into this and see the confusion and biblical evidence has opened my eyes. The next barrier is understanding where the students stand on their confusion or understanding. The thing that is harder for me is understanding and incorporating the different way people learn. There is a bible project video we could use to have a discussion. Discussion style talk is a bit scarier to me than just talk, but this maybe a better way to engage Gen Z and these intellect students. Hanging with students: At the beginning of the year a comment was made that service did was not part of the chapters DNA. Service is a life giving activity for me and it has been a joy coordinating and sharing with the chapter and the students to service in the local area. This weekend we were able to do a service project with a few students. All these opportunities to meet informally with students has been a way to share with each other and get to know each other more.

MEETING(S) WITH MENTOR(S) TOPICS OF DISCUSSION REFLECTIONS
We meet for intervarsity performance review that included area director as well. This evaluation included anonymous feedback from students. This was encouraging. Feedback was positive. One comment my mentor mention a few weeks ago was planning and praying as if I would see freshman graduate and see if that would help me “live into the reality” that this is a permanent vocation.
