

Before world war 1 war was perceived as being necessary.

Britain's army was mixed

Over 15 million people killed and over 20 million wounded.

Britain's army had combatants from Canada, New Zealand, Africa and India, Australia.

1. There were over 15 million people killed and 20+ million wounded in World War 1 and in France 13% of the male population died in the war. This war was destructive and many civilians died during the war. At the close of the war the Influenza pandemic took out more people than the war itself.
2. Machine guns and barbed wire were instrumental in making this war so deadly. There was no need for to aim at a particular target they just need to unload their guns someone was bound to get hit.
3. The U.S. were allies to the British and French in the war leading to increased geo-political influence for the US. The war helped US go from being a debtor nation to being a creditor nation.
