One thing that has been helpful to me throughout this course is the Threaded Discussions.

Before taking this course I never paid attention to the Authors tone of voice being used throughout the book, short story, or article. I would just read, but I never read to understand the Author's tone. After doing the threaded discussions for some time now, I now read and try to understand the reader's tone not just short stories for this class but for when I read anything else. Understanding the author tone keeps me interested because now I pay attention to how it changes throughout the story.
