This course enables me to reflect on something important. Voicing and speaking up opinions not only to persuade but to point out reasons or argument. For me it is a form of honesty, and it is the only way to make a difference. I often remain silent, but now it helps me to realize that it is okay to step up when it is necessary. It doesn't mean that you are being rude you just have to tell what is on your mind so you can find solution to a certain problem or an issue. It is not easy, it takes practice and confidence to do it. I just don't agree with Buckley generalizing Americans as too passive in response to an uncomfortable situation. Nowadays, people are genuinely learning and gaining confidence in helping out others.
