The process of having your music in this medium is a very great avenue to take your career. I think that if you always had the desire to launch your career in this music industry by getting everything you can out of it then, by all means. Do not hold back from the opportunities that are presented to you. DIY can sometimes decrease your chances of receiving exposure to television networks. However, all artists consider that this type of publicity requires more work. The artists now have to uphold their public image. Additionally, you need to have a professional profile if you want to open doors in this industry as this is an easy platform to connect major people that can create a networking hub for your career.
