

Talitha Benjamin

Professor Lyndell O'Haraa

World Civilization 1

27 March, 2023

Europe vs Ghana

Ancient Ghana, 1100 CE

There are many similarities between the Europe and Ghana diagrams. Both were ruled by kings, were heavily influenced by their military, practiced Christianity, and had peasants. However they also have some differences as well. The most obvious difference for me is that Europe's diagram has peasants as the lowest class while Ghana's diagram has slaves, under the peasants, as the lowest class. Another thing that I realized is that while the Priest were considered as being apart of the noble class in Ghana, in Europe the Priest were completely separated from the pyramid and are off to the side in their own pyramid as they were in against the state. I also see that while Ghana has a noble class, the top of Europe's pyramid is almost completely filled with red as warriors and knights had the most control under after the king making Europe have militarized law,.

Works Cited

Figure 10.9 Warriors and Law. Hierarchy Structure of Barbarian Kingdoms and Carolingian Empire. 2023. Frameworks of World History : Networks, Hierarchies, Culture, Volume One : to 1550, Stephen Morillo; Lynne Morillo, Oxford University Press, 2013, pg. 320

Patel Palak, "The Empire of Africa : Kingdom of Ghana Social Hierarchy", WordPress, 3 December 2012, <https://fsaad22.wordpress.com/2012/12/03/kingdom-of-ghana-social-hierarchy-2/>

Prittie Jacob, "The Social Classes of Mali and Ghana Empires", Prezi, 12 December 2018, <https://prezi.com/qyxxbleuynsq/the-social-classes-of-the-mali-and-ghana-empires/>

Schwimmer Brain, "Countries and Their Cultures:Ghana", Every Culture, <https://www.everyculture.com/Ge-It/Ghana.html> . Accessed : 26 March 2023