History of Music Theatre and Broadway

Music has always been a fascinating thing I have come to know about; how well people can come up with new things to add to it and create something beautiful for the ears but also for the eyes. This artwork evolves to become one of the things everyone relies on in every situation, which encourages the people in the music business to create ways to benefit them while still giving the audience what they love. The invention of Music Theater is one of the most incredible things ever made because we can experience different emotions displayed in every play; we can observe and analyze the characters and the song. Music Theater keeps evolving with changes in each century; people are creative because they use different styles to produce new shows and bring new audiences through their success. All in all, what the authors add in each front to keep musical theater alive is one of the vital characteristics of this invention.
