My takeaways of the video and what I learned is that, in the Gupta Empire many people are happy and benevolent people, they don't kill any living creature which I find pretty insane, since living in the states, in the news you always see killings not that it happens in India which it does maybe, but the United States is always talking about many different crisis, such as gun control and of that nature. Buddhism and Muslims live at peace in India which is a little crazy to me since both religions are very different but thats just the culture of India and the Gupta Empire.
