The depictions of the Holocaust that I am familiar with is the story of Anne Frank and how the Jews were annihilated through mass shootings and gas chambers. The Nazi German regime projects the European Jews by violent hate crime based on ethnicity and religion by Nazi German regime. According to Wikipedia, it states that, German Nazi's and under the guidance of Adolph Hitler who was the chancellor at that time could not accept their defeat in WWI making the Jews responsible for starting WWI constructed antisemitism. Therefore, decided to retaliate based on the idea that they were indirectly attacked by all Jews, men, women and children abolishing religious worship and or anything that had to do with any group that was abominable. Although the Jews were liberated from the concentration camps by allied troops by the end of WWII you had some prisoners ill, starving, psychological issues, women being sterilized and thousands of dead bodies. The effects of their liberation, the thought of knowing that their families are gone and or misplaced and to try to locate families. The simple fact that they either were going to outlive what they endured such as malnutrition, psychological trauma, and or relocating to a different location where they probably think go through the same things such as the racist ideology. The aftermath of the Holocaust has been known through-out the world by then it was announced via radio. It you go to research the Holocaust you will find vast images of Nevertheless, it is stated that Germany leaned toward justifying their actions by remaining silent. When I was in Elementary school we learned about the Holocaust and every time it comes up it just makes you think, why? The saddest research over anything that I have to read about time an time again. I'm sure for anyone.
