The topic that I'm choosing is writing. Since this topic is broad, I want to narrow it down and only focus on one aspect. My viewpoint is that a research paper is not tough to write. In these two weeks, I read two articles about the professor teaching students how to arouse interest in writing a research paper and the steps to achieve this goal. Both authors deal with a similar problem, indicating that students lack interest in writing research papers. After reading both articles and the methods both authors introduced, I assume that their methods are practical and effective.
