

Uncle Gene.

I only met my uncle once at my brother's wedding but when I met him I saw a tall, interesting, and inquisitive man who took interest in little details about people. He was an analyst in the Vietnam war and he decoded broadcasts and messages that were encrypted as well. I have learned many things about him, his experience, and the effects the Vietnam war had on him and his friends. I interviewed him over the phone during sunset and drank the nostalgic words he shared with me. My goal is to do him, and his comrades' justice by properly conveying his experience and recuperation even after the war.