Leasing Beats

After watching the video about leasing beats, I now understand why some beats are familiar in different songs. This is a good thing per se if those beats are copyrighted, and we have the owner's permission to use them. Casey Graham clarifies that leasing the beats we sometimes produce can benefit us; he says that if we need a boost in our career, we should consider this option that can lead us to be known in the music industry. Sometimes pride will not lead us anywhere but in failure; we should be proud of our work while helping others succeed with theirs. If they succeed, we will also grow and vice versa because we have the right over those beats, so what they would gain from using them will also be our gain.
