In this alternate history, the Inca empire has existed for another 100 years. In this alternate history, the Inca empire is less isolated, enabling more connections to be able to exist and thrive throughout the civilization. Inca culture will have more of an effect on the contemporary world. Having more access to better and various metals will make this society more competent in terms of warfare. Also, this developed society gained the ability to document and develop its own writing system. Developing an independent writing system would have meant the ability to communicate and share their own ideas much better when networking. Finally, when it came to dealing with the Spanish invasion, the Incas would have been able to succeed in warding off the Spanish.
