10-Point Response:

At first, I thought he was talking about the headphones and then I realized that it was about musical beats, I personally think that leasing beats are also a good idea, especially for someone that is starting out in the music industry. No, it's not fully original but for someone that wants to get started and get some ideas going this can be very beneficial plus a big thing he pointed out was that it's basically expensive to get the equipment to make your own beats. If you have that money sure go for it but more times than not you don't and it's more logical to lease the beat instead.
