Movies like Independence Day where terror was created and a world had to come together show what kind of networks, hierarchies, and culture would be expected. From a surprise alien invasion to people coming together and working to save the human race. Networks were important to help society come together and fight against what created danger. Where all people would come and create a sense of nationality to help them get through these unprecedented times. Hierarchies would be formed to have that sense of control and authority when things get out of control. These people in these head positions would help make important decisions to save mankind. Specific people that are experts in certain areas to help the U.S. move forward with important decisions. Culture would be created to help people get through this alien invasion. This specific unexpected time brought important intelligent people together to help save earth and its people.
