

Chapter 13

In the recent past, there have been two major disruptions that have had a profound impact on society. These disruptions have caused a significant shift in the way people live their lives and have brought about a new era of change. The first disruption is the COVID-19 pandemic, which has affected millions of people worldwide. The second is the Black Lives Matter movement, which has sparked conversations about systemic racism and police brutality(Kamble).

The COVID-19 pandemic has caused an unprecedented disruption to society. Governments all over the world had to impose lockdowns to prevent the spread of the virus(Biden and Jr. 2021). This led to the closure of businesses, schools, and public places. People were forced to stay at home, and many lost their jobs. The response to this disruption was mixed. While some people complied with the lockdowns, others protested against them. The pandemic also highlighted the inequalities in society, with marginalized communities being disproportionately affected.

The Black Lives Matter movement was sparked by the killing of George Floyd by a police officer in Minneapolis. The movement quickly spread across the United States and other parts of the world. People took to the streets to protest against police brutality and systemic racism. The response to the movement was also mixed. While many people showed solidarity with the protesters, others criticized them for being too extreme. The movement also highlighted the deep-seated racial tensions in society and the need for change.(Cottman et al., 2021)ttman et al. 2021)

These two disruptions have shown that society is not immune to change. They have also highlighted the values that are important to people, such as unity, equality, and justice. As we move forward, it is important to learn from these disruptions and work towards building a more equitable and just society(National Research Council et al. 2015). We must take the lessons learned from these disruptions and apply them to our daily lives. We must work towards creating a society that is fair and just for all. We must strive to create a world where everyone has equal opportunities and where everyone is treated with respect and dignity.

The COVID-19 pandemic and the Black Lives Matter movement have brought about a new era of change. They have shown us that we can no longer ignore the inequalities in our society. We must work together to create a better world for ourselves and for future generations. We must be confident in our ability to create change and never give up on our quest for a more equitable and just society.

Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine et al., 2017; Schwab, 2017)

Anderson, J. Q. (2005). Imagining the Internet: Personalities, Predictions, Perspectives. Rowman & Littlefield Publishers.

Cottman, M. H., Gaines, P., Bunn, C., Charles, N., & Harriston, K. (2021). Say Their Names: How Black Lives Came to Matter in America. Hachette UK.

Department of Economic and Social Affairs. (2020). World Social Report 2020: Inequality in a Rapidly Changing World. United Nations.

National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Health and Medicine Division, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Board on Science Education, Board on Children, Youth, and Families, & Committee on Fostering School Success for English Learners: Toward New Directions in Policy, Practice, and Research. (2017). Promoting the Educational Success of Children and Youth Learning English: Promising Futures. National Academies Press.

Schwab, K. (2017). The Fourth Industrial Revolution. Currency.