

Janiel Ortega

Thesis

Final Paper

There are various theological perspectives on the fate of those who have never heard of Christ and the salvation he offers. Some believe that only those who explicitly accept Christ as their savior will be saved and enter heaven, while others hold that God will judge each person based on their response to the knowledge of God that is available to them. Ultimately, the fate of those who have never heard of Christ is a complex and controversial issue that remains a matter of theological debate and interpretation.