

Manuel Rincon
Christian Thought
Prof. Amy Davis-Abdullah

Final Paper Proposal

Some in the Church around the world hold that the Bible prohibits women from positions of leadership, and that women have a subordinate role in marriage. This paper will demonstrate that the opposite is true. Men and women are equal in both marriage and in the availability to acquire positions of leadership in the Church. We know this due to the witness within Scripture, from beginning to end, of women in positions of leadership, because of Pauline theology, and because of the overarching effects of Christ's redemptive work. All of these points will be elaborated on in this paper, as well as practical measures that can be taken to proliferate and promulgate the equality of men and women.

Bibliography/Works Cited

- Epp, E. J. (2005). In Junia: The First Woman Apostle. essay, Augsburg Fortress.
- Payne, P. B. (2019). Is 1 Corinthians 14:34-35 a Marginal Comment or a Quotation? A Response to Kirk MacGregor . Priscilla Papers, 33(2).
- Pierce, R. W., & Mckirland, C. L. (2021). In C. L. Westfall (Ed.), Discovering Biblical Equality. essay, Intervarsity press .
- Piper, J., & Grudem, W. (2021). Recovering Biblical Manhood & Womanhood. Crossway.