

Calvin Wilson

MUS415: Worldview of Music and Worship

Professor Sue Talley

4/10/2023

Unit 2, Lesson 7

1.) We describe God as “omniscient” and “omnipresent.” To Him, all things are present, in some respect. How do you, personally understand His foreknowledge? Does “time” have the same meaning to Him as it does to us, humans?

God is omniscient meaning he knows all, there is nothing hidden from him. He is also omnipresent meaning that He is everywhere at once. God has all knowledge which means there is nothing he doesn't know. God does not exist in time he exists outside of it and unlike man, His life does not consist of moments following one another

2.) Can you see that what we consider to be a “commemoration” and a “day of celebration” could be part of God's eternal day and eternal time? Explain.

A commemoration and a day of celebration could be a part of God's eternal day and eternal time because, from God's perspective, he sees the past, present, and future all at once, continuously.

3.) In what sense is the celebration of Pascha (Easter) both temporal (in time) and eternal (outside of time)?

Easter is both temporal and eternal because we can identify easter on a timeline. Easter has a date that can be traced in human history, but it is also eternal because the resurrection power of Jesus transcends human time and comprehension.