I believe that the world had a major disruption in 2019 after the New Year's celebration when the Coronavirus became a high case watch 1000 of people in China died from the virus in a short period of time rapidly. when it hit the states especially New York City it was like a serious Lookout that it will not spread to other states. the 3-year pandemic called serious disruptions in every American lives and people around the world:

- loss of lives
- lost of income
- lost of businesses
- major government daily Business interactions had to be changed, which caused some government offices to still operate on pandemic operation schedules to this day.
- The public had to be very cautious of whom they are around and what they touch
- all of America had to abide by PPT rulings that were made by the World Health Organization.
- all children in the United States had to attend school from home. All classrooms in public schools and private schools were closed.
- Many Banks did not operate regular business hours and they had limited amounts of workers available during those times.
- many grocery stores and other retail businesses had to make changes to their business establishments. for example, my job at Whole Foods Market Manhattan West Hudson yards had to Open its doors for 3 hours for senior citizens since their immune systems were at risk more than individuals who were younger than 60 years of age. After the 3 hours other customers can come in to shop but the store could not have a certain capacity of people at one time.
- This pandemic also created an increase in items like bleach, sanitizer, alcohol, disinfect wipes, soap, toilet tissue, vinegar, and other products to become in high demand that companies increase their prices.

Now that the pandemic is somewhat over, the American people are feeling the effects from this pandemic. from unemployment to increase in the costs of food. There are many disruptive events, no matter world wide or personal, that can cause anyone to get off track.
