What Techniques I Have been Using To get My Paper Ready On Time

First of all I must say that I have come thus far by faith and have been able to get more done. I'm repeating this course alone and trying my best to submit all that is required of me to successfully complete the weekly assignments, this time around. For some reason, I've been trying with all that is within me this time around by utilizing the resource personnel from the writing center, defying the odds to complete my assignments as required and submit them. Unfortunately, I may not be able to submit this research paper on time. I've had some setbacks. I was out of the country, then I was unable to get booking appointments in a timely manner with the Writing Center. Sometimes I was put on the waiting list in case there was a cancellation.

The techniques I will be using are choosing my topic, gathering data from credible sources, developing my thesis statement and paragraphs, do citations, proofreading, and typing the final paper for submission.

There were two topics on the list that were very interesting to me, but I was finally able to make a decision on my choice. Gathering data from credible sources in the academic journal databases and on the general web that will provide data for my topic.

Then brainstorming; how to go about writing the paper . develop my thesis statement and paragraphs. I was able to book three appointments for this part, two of which were completed, and one to to be done tomorrow.

Gathering the information that is needed after compiling data ,proofread the draft type and submit.
