

JeanBaptiste Lamisere

TH605 NA History of Christianity

Professor Louis A. DeCaro

Dated 04/18/2023

QUESTIONS

1. By what means every human problem would eventually be solved?
2. What great contribution did the West want to make to the world?
3. When was the time all humankind involved in two world wars?
4. What are the three main branches of Christianity?
5. Who called the Second Vatican Council?

Answers

1. Every human problem will eventually be solved through reason and Technology.
2. The West wanted to contribute to science and Technology.
3. All humankind was involved in two world wars during the thirty years between 1914 and 1944.
4. The three main branches of Christianity are the Eastern, the Roman Catholic, and the Protestant.
5. John XXIII called the Second Vatican Council to open the church for the need of the people.

TERMS

Periti: Experts are theologians who earlier Popes had silenced.

Barmen Declaration: Theology declaration adapted by Christians during Nazi German who opposed Christian German.

Ecumenism: Missionaries promote unity and seek collaboration among the various churches.

SUMMARY

The introduction of chapter nine outlined that the twentieth century put an end to modernity. We look at colonialism in a different light. Science and Technology were the great contributions the West wanted to make to the world. It is called the "white man burden." Colonialism was claimed to be justified by humanity but very costly. Furthermore, the entire African Continent was under European rule in the Twentieth Century. Colonialism suppressed the ancient tradition movement. The three main branches of churches played a significant role and lived under a hostile government. The Catholic Churches open their doors to the needs of the people. The missionary seeks to unite the church and show greater flexibility and creativity.