

HIS114: World Civilization II
LYNDELL O'HARA
Karinna Rocha

Based on studies, I believe that a new nation that would involve so many languages as a mandatory to speak would open barriers in the society today, as a modern society, the Democracy is a big thing today because everyone has words to speak, and I have the feeling where a nation that has a mandatory 3 languages would communicate better to the rests of the world and I can imagine that the democracy would be heard easier than anything else, causing also people to have more freedom of speech and not only speech, but also communicating to the world, anywhere they go, would be able to be heard, and understood, and this also I believe would improve a lot the capitalism, can improve the connection to other different countries mutually, another point I believe is that the Diversity would expand in a large amount, because of the combinations of cultures that would be merged in one place where the society of this nation would have to learn of adaptation and respect of each of these people individualism, and respect each other space.