Journal 5

Last Tuesday, I had my fifth clinical experience. We met with our clinical instructor Vanessa Hernandez in the medical-surgical unit. When we met with our instructor, each one of us was assigned to a patient room and a nurse that would help us if we had any questions. We were also instructed to fill out the report sheet for clinical week 11 throughout our clinical shift. The primary challenge I faced was knowing exactly what was going on with my patient and the reasoning as to why she was. This is because my patient was technically on airborne precautions when I looked at the chart, but when I looked outside the patient's room there was no indication of airborne precautions. Additionally, the room seemed to be open, meaning that the patient did not seem to be under precautions. That being said, my instructor and I looked at the chart and realized that technically the patient was not on airborne precautions due to what was shown on the lab reports. Furthermore, I think that I learned a lot throughout my fifth clinical experience. I recognize the areas I need to improve and work on which consist of finding more resources to figure out my patients and their needs. One verse from the scripture that helped me this week in clinical is "Ask and it will be given to you; seek and you will find; knock and the door will be opened to you." Matthew 7:7. This week was a bit overwhelming and stressful for me this week due to it being the final weeks of the semester. I've been feeling stressed and overwhelmed about the way the semester is ending due to all of the exams and check offs that are happening. This bible verse reminds me that God is going to help me through this place I am currently in and all that I ask with the desire of my heart, He will answer.
