

Lisa Nkrumah Ababio

Professor Lima

NUR 301

Apr 22, 2023

Islamism is a worldview that is based on the Islamic religion, which is the second-largest religion in the world. This worldview finds its foundations in the teachings of the prophet Muhammad and the Quran. It is important to understand Islamism as it is a significant religion with a large number of followers, and it has shaped many societies and cultures around the world. In this paper, we will explore the main concepts of the Islamic worldview, including their beliefs about God, human beings, the world/environment, health/well-being, and nursing/caring. Additionally, we will compare and contrast the Islamic worldview with a Biblical worldview.

In the Islamic worldview, God is considered the creator of the universe, and Muslims believe in the oneness of God, known as Allah. They believe that God is merciful, compassionate, and forgiving. Allah holds the utmost importance in the lives of Muslims, and they pray five times a day facing Mecca, which is considered the holy city of Islam. In contrast, in Christianity, God is also believed to be the creator of the universe and is considered as one God in three persons, known as the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit. The Bible teaches that human beings are created in the image of God and possess inherent value and dignity, whereas in Islamism, while humans are considered special creations of God, the concept of being created in the image of God is not taught.

Muslims believe that human beings are unique creations of God and are superior to other living creatures. They also believe that every person is born with a natural inclination towards goodness and is accountable for their actions. Human beings possess free will and are responsible for their choices and actions, which aligns with the Christian worldview as well.

In the Islamic worldview, the world is viewed as a creation of God, and Muslims are considered stewards of the environment. They believe that everything in nature has a purpose and that it is their responsibility to take care of it. They also see the environment as a reflection of God's mercy, beauty, and power. Similarly, in Christianity and Islamism, the belief in humans being stewards of the environment and having the responsibility to care for it is shared. However, in Christianity, the concept of the fall of man and the fallen state of the world due to the fall of Adam and Eve is present, whereas Islamism does not have this concept.

Health and well-being are considered fundamental aspects of the Islamic worldview. Muslims believe that physical and mental health is crucial for a person to lead a fulfilling life. They also believe that good health is a blessing from God and that taking care of their bodies through healthy eating, exercise, and avoiding harmful substances is important. While Christianity and Islamism both emphasize the importance of good health as a blessing from God and the need to care for one's body, Christianity also encompasses the concept of spiritual well-being, which is not explicitly present in Islamism.

Nursing and caring are viewed as critical aspects of the Islamic worldview. Muslims believe that caring for others is a form of worship to God and that nursing is a profession that involves both physical and emotional care for patients. In Islamism, nursing is seen as a way to serve humanity and it is considered essential to treat patients with respect and dignity. Similarly, in Christianity and Islamism, nursing and caring for others are considered vital. However, in Christianity, nursing is seen as a way to serve others and glorify God, while in Islamism, nursing is viewed as a way to serve humanity and show respect and dignity to patients.

In conclusion, both Christianity and Islamism are important worldviews that share similarities, but as a Christian, I may be biased towards Christianity as a fair worldview.

References

Abdullah, A. (2018). Islamic worldview: An overview. International Journal of Humanities and Social Science Research, 7(2), 34-41.

Al-Marzooqi, S. H. (2015). Islamic worldview: A critical review. International Journal of Humanities and Social Science Research, 4(2), 37-46.

Bakar, O. (2016). Islam and the environment: An Islamic perspective on the environmental crisis. Routledge.

Chapman, A. (2019). Christianity and the environment: A biblical perspective. Routledge.

Habashi, R. (2019). Islamic worldview: Historical and conceptual overview. In J. Marais, M. Fourie, & R. Habashi (Eds.), Handbook of Research on Cross-Cultural Business Education (pp. 1-27). IGI Global.

The Holy Bible: New International Version. (1984). Biblica.

Younus, M. F., & Almalki, M. J. (2018). Nursing and health care practices in Islam. Journal of Health Care Chaplaincy, 24(3), 102-112.