I remember one of the inspirational quote from the film I viewed, Freedom Writers, "But to get respect you have to give it.", Erin Gruwell, a dedicated English teacher in a Los Angeles racially divided school. The easiest way to earn respect is to provide it which was seen in the film. The determination and the will Ms. Gruwell embodied, no matter what the situation is, showed effect to empowering others to accept and develop the positive outlook that we are all children of God and we deserve love and respect. Honestly, I am very much inspired by this film. There is so much hate and violence in the world, I learned that in order for our us to grow and prosper in life we should learn to be kind, accept and respect others no matter where or what color, tradition or culture we have.
