

Chuan-Che Lin

Professor Beverley Crawford - Locke

College Writing I

26 April 2023

Couple Don't Need To Have Children

Having children is almost every couple's wish, and it is also an important part of making a family, but some of the couples don't want any children, and it is a very different choice, because this choice will affect their life until the end.

The main reason of having children is to be fulfilled, it is important for woman, because if they don't have any children, they are selfish, but it is also important for man too, because a lot of point of view believe that people who do not have children will lead empty lives, so that is why everyone want to have children, but they don't know what is the cost and how it add more burden to them.

But how can children be a burden to them? There are three main reasons, including spending money on them, having more pressure on children, and having less free time for themselves, so if they don't have children, instead they can get more money, having less pressure, and having more time of freedom, this is good for them.

For the first reason, there is a research about attitudes of have children, and one of factor is economic constraints, the couple need to spend money on children like food, education, bigger house to have space for children, if the couple have more and more children, the cost will be more, and they will not keep the cost of living, finally they will be poor and the family will be broken, it lead to an bad ending, not mention two is limited, if they got more, it will become this.

The second reason sounds very common, but how the couple have pressure on children? It is the children's action, like did they will break the rule and do some bad things, like destroy public property, not study very well on school, and even the parents need to teach them these things, but if the children can't learn, they will continue to do this, and even worse, they will bring the whole family to shame on sociality, and it make the couple more pressure just because their children do something terrible to affect their life, some of news is showed how children do some bad things that are big enough to make the parents to be insult by some people that think they didn't learned the children well, and it even effect children to not face the world, and even worse, they will going to suicide, and make couple think everything they did is pointless.

Also the pressure will make couple have some health issue, because take care children need to have patience, and a lot of work, so they need to do their best to take care of children, after that, they don't have much time to relax, and then they need to do their work on next day, this bad cycle will make them start to have health issue, and it will make them not to keep it on one day.

The third reason is very important to those couple both have work, after a day work, they want to spend time to relax, or do whatever they want to do, but when they have children, they need to spend time on children, because the children need some help, and more time to accompany, the only person they can accompany is father and mother, and after parents spend time on children, the time of their freedom is decrease.

So look for the counterargument on the first reason, it can change mind like have one child is enough, or if you're poor, just don't have it, but in some result, poor family have more children than rich family, and it is kinda special, also weird, if the poor couple know they don't have money, why they still want children, is they want children to gain more money to them? Or they just want their dream to put on the children, and make the children's future have more pressure because the parents tell them need to do that to have better future?

On the second reason of counterargument, people think the couple can find other people to take care and educate children, it can make the couple have less pressure, but even that is how the school work, but some couples still worry about how the children feel the parents are not important to them.

For the third reason of counterargument, the only way to make more free time is to reduce job time, and the couple can spend the right time on children, after that they can have more free time, but it sounds easier than actually doing this, because it will make the couple have less money.

Also only one of parents to have most of time to take care children is like a good way to do it, some of family is really let the woman to do it, but take care children is both of couple need to do, and it will lead children to love mother more than father, it is not a good balance.

So how these couple don't have children's life can effect them? For get more money, they can force on their job, and when they can just cost on their living, they cost less and even can save more to let them become rich, even not every couple can do that, but it still better than some couple that know they don't have much money on children but still want it, and it become a big trouble to them.

The second one is having less pressure, the couple already have some pressure on job, if they don't have children, they can just force to deal the pressure on job, not the problem on children, or the whole sociality think this family is bad, make couple don't want to face everyone, and even better, they can be healthy because they have less pressure to effect them

And third one is having more time of freedom, if children will take couple a lot of time after work, and then make them can't do whatever they want, but without children, they have more time to do whatever they want, not just relax, they can go to travel together, or better free time, it is the good thing that don't have children.

But the couple needs to think the reason why they need to have children, not just blind decide to have them due to some pressure from the whole world and their parents, is because they want to fulfill their life and don't think how the world will hurt them? Or they don't think children will have some defect that suffer their whole life?

If they have children, does couple can make children not worry about how they will become in the future? Or does their action make the whole family to be a shame to whole sociality? Those are the questions that couple need to think before want to have children.

Finally, even having children is a very common thing in the world, it feel like if couple don't do that they will be laugh by other people, and even make the life become empty and helpless, but for this generation of choose freedom, the couple don't really need to follow this way of the world, they can choose whatever they like, and they can even think if this can be a big burden to them, they can choose not to have children, because this burden not only make them happy, it also can make a big unhappy to them, choose this different way can make them become more happier.

Works Cited

Fine-Davis, Margret. "Attitudes to Having Children and Childlessness." Changing Gender Roles and Attitudes to Family Formation in Ireland, 1st ed., Manchester University Press, 2016, pp. 95–113. JSTOR, <http://www.jstor.org/stable/j.ctvnb7k7g.11>. Accessed 22 Apr. 2023.

<https://www.girlsgonestrong.com/blog/articles/not-children-valid-healthy-choice/>