NUR292: Foundations for Nursing Practice

Mrs. Vanessa Hernandez

April 27, 2023

The Department of Nursing's conceptual framework centers around Christian principles and values, which guide the nursing practice. The framework highlights the importance of spiritual, psychosocial, and physical aspects of humanity in providing holistic care. The paper aims to reflect on the framework and discuss its relevance to developing as a professional nurse. Additionally, the paper will suggest a concept to add or remove from the framework and rationale. for the same.

The Department of Nursing's conceptual framework is relevant to developing as a professional nurse because it emphasizes the importance of spirituality and cultural diversity in providing holistic care. The framework suggests that Godly living is foundational to providing nursing care, and it is essential to grow in a personal relationship with Christ. As a student nurse, I agree that spiritual growth is essential because it provides the foundation for compassionate care, and it helps me to understand and respect cultural diversity. The framework also emphasizes the importance of advocacy in nursing practice, which is vital for all nurses. Nurses advocate for others by providing direct treatment, care coordination, and social and political advocacy to reduce health care disparities. I agree that advocacy is critical for promoting social justice, reducing health inequities, and improving health outcomes. Moreover, the framework highlights the importance of service to others as the heart of nursing.

Service is motivated by and reflects our love for Christ, and a service-oriented mindset is essential for a meaningful and satisfying career as a professional nurse. I think that service is an important characteristic of a professional nurse because it promotes patient-centered care, which is central to nursing practice. I agree that service is an essential attribute of a professional nurse because it helps to promote patient-centered care, which is fundamental to nursing practice.

I agree with the Department of Nursing's conceptual framework. From a Christian perspective, I believe that Godly living is essential in the delivery of nursing care. I believe that if we, as nurses to be, live according to God's standards, we are more likely to provide care in a way that honors God and shows respect for our patients. Additionally, I believe that it is important to understand and respect the diversity of each individual person, and to strive for health in harmony with God. I also believe that a professional nurse must have this skill. Nurses advocate for others through providing direct treatment, coordinating care, and engaging in social and political advocacy to reduce healthcare inequities.

I believe that a nurse's role is to advocate for those in need, and to provide compassionate presence to those who are suffering. I think it is essential that nurses strive to be culturally competent in order to provide care that is meaningful to their clients. I agree with framework in that Christian nursing requires a willingness to obey God's standards and to serve others. This means being willing to put the needs of others before our own and to strive to provide the best care possible. It also means being willing to put aside any personal biases or preconceived notions and instead, to embrace the diversity of each individual patient. In doing so, we can honor God and serve our patients in a way that is true to our calling as Christian nurses.

I believe that the conceptual framework will be an invaluable resource for me in developing as a professional nurse. As a Christian, I think that the framework will help me to stay grounded in my faith and to live according to God's standards. I believe that living according to God's standards will help me to provide the best care possible to my patients, as it will ensure that my actions are aligned with God's will. Additionally, I think the framework will help me to develop a better understanding of the diverse patient population I will be serving. I believe that by striving to be culturally competent, I will be better able to provide care that is meaningful to my patients and that honors their beliefs and values. I believe that the framework will help me to remain focused on the task of serving others. I think that by being reminded of the importance of service to others, I will be better able to put the needs of my patients before my own and to strive to provide them with the best care possible. I believe that this idea will help me to become a more compassionate, caring nurse and to better serve my patients.

If I had to remove one concept from the conceptual framework, it would be the concept of health. While health is an important goal of individuals, it is only one aspect of a person's overall wellbeing. Health is a complex and multi-faceted concept, and does not always accurately reflect a person's state of being. Furthermore, health is culturally defined, and what one person may consider to be healthy may not be the same for another person. Therefore, I think it is important to focus on the overall wellbeing of the person rather than solely on the concept of health. I believe that instead of focusing on health, the framework should focus on the importance of holistic healing. Holistic healing looks at the mind, body, and spirit of the individual, and takes into account the individual's social, cultural, and spiritual context. It is important to recognize that the individual is a complex being and that health is only one part of their overall wellbeing. Holistic healing acknowledges the interconnectedness of all aspects of the person and looks at how all aspects of their life can be addressed to promote their wellbeing. Though the framework touches on the fact that health is multifaceted I believe that it should have elaborated on the fact that Christian nursing should focus care on all aspects of being as we are more than a physical body.

Finally, I think that the framework should focus more on the concept of advocacy. Advocacy is essential to providing excellent nursing care, as it allows nurses to take action and speak up for those in need. I believe that nurses should strive to advocate for their patients and to ensure that they are receiving the care that they need and deserve. This includes advocating for equitable resource allocation for the vulnerable, and taking action to ensure that health care disparities are addressed. By focusing on advocacy, nurses can ensure that their patients are receiving the care that they need and that their voices are being heard.

In conclusion, I agree with the Department of Nursing's conceptual framework as written and believe that it provides a good foundation for the delivery of nursing care from a Christian worldview. The framework emphasizes the importance of spiritual, psychosocial, and physical aspects of humanity in providing holistic care, and it highlights the importance of advocacy, service, and excellence in nursing practice. The concepts of Godly living, persons, health, environment, nursing, service, and cultural competence serve as reminders of our calling as Christian nurses. We must strive to understand and honor the unique attributes of each patient and to provide holistic care that meets the individual's needs. We must also remember to be advocates for our patients and to ensure that they have access to the care they need. By adhering to the Department of Nursing's conceptual framework, we can effectively serve our patients and glorify God through our actions.
