Date: 3/28/2024 10:00 - 3/28/2024 12:00

Figuring out how to create and maintain professional boundaries at work is common struggle for supervisors. Employees report wanting to feel connected, respected and valued by their supervisor, but supervisors sometimes struggle in those gray areas between friendship and authority. In this session, we will look at how appropriate boundaries can actually be freeing and help prevent conflicts while fostering positive, interpersonal, workplace relationships. Learn how to set clear and customized boundaries for yourself, those you supervise and your team as whole. Recognizing boundaries not only as limitations, but as ways to empower your team, will also help you in achieving your goals for coaching, counseling and motivating staff.
