

Mary Rowlandson

Mary Rowlandson was born on January 5, 1637,
in the United Kingdom.

She died January 5, 1711, at age 74.

Mary Rowlandson was one of nine children of John and Joane White.

During Mary's early childhood, the whites migrated to America and settled at Salem, a town in the puritan colony of Massachusetts Bay.

The Sovereignty and Goodness of God

Mary Rowlandson

Mary Rowlandson was one of the most well-known captivity narratives in early American literature. After she was taken captive by the Native Americans, she published her narratives to offer a small glimpse of what she experienced for eleven weeks, while being held captive.

One of her most famous piece of literature was, 'The Sovereignty and Goodness of God', which was also one of her books about her captivity.

Facts about Mary Rowlandson

- 1. Mary Rowlandson was the first woman in North America to publish a book.
- 2. She was the founder of the historical genre, the captivity narrative, also the genre she used to write in.

Mary Rowlandson's most famous quote:

The Lord hereby would make us the more acknowledge His hand, and to see that our help is always in Him.

Mary Rowlandson

