"I am excited to share that I recently completed the STEM Leadership Certificate program through NASA Endeavor. The program far exceeded my expectations by not only expounding upon STEM teaching practices, three-dimensional teaching, and numerous NASA assets, but by developing the mindset of what it means to be a "teacher leader". Not only did I have the opportunity to conduct a professional development on the benefits of anchoring phenomena, but I also got to design several units of study. Click here to check out an astronomy unit plan I developed! After participating in the Endeavor program, I now feel empowered to not only be a force of change for STEM education in my own classroom, but in the broader school community as well. I am very thankful to have had this opportunity and strongly encourage others to participate!"
