IN YOUR OWN WORDS

FOR WRITING AND DISCUSSION

THAT'S WHAT FRIENDS ARE FOR!

Frank has some very nice friends. He sees his friends often. When he needs help, they're always happy to help him. For example, last week Frank moved to a new apartment. He couldn't move everything by himself, and he didn't really have enough money to hire a moving company. His friends came over and helped him move everything. He was very grateful. His friends said, "We're happy to help you, Frank. That's what friends are for!"

Emma has some very special friends. She sees her friends often. When she needs help, they're always happy to help her. For example, last month the faucet broke in Emma's kitchen and flooded her apartment. There was water in every room. She couldn't fix everything herself, and her superintendent didn't help her at all. Her friends came over and helped her fix the faucet and clean up every room in the apartment. She was very grateful. Her friends said, "We're happy to help you, Emma. That's what friends are for!"

It's nice to have friends you can rely on when you need help. Tell about a time when your friends helped you. Tell about a time when you helped a friend.

KNOW YOUR RIGHTS! Advice for tenants from the Franklin County Fair Housing Council

As a tenant, it's important to know your rights. According to state law, tenants have the right to an apartment that is safe and healthy to live in. The heating, plumbing, and electricity must work. The windows, doors, walls, roof, floors, and stairways must be in good condition. The building and the land around it must be clean. The apartment must have a bathroom with a toilet, sink, and bathtub or shower, and a kitchen with a sink. All of these must be in working condition. The apartment must also have windows that open in each room, safe fire or emergency exits, smoke detectors that work, and locks on outside doors and windows.

With these tenant rights, there are also responsibilities—things that you, as a tenant, have to do. You must take good care of your apartment, follow all the rules in your rental agreement or lease, and tell the landlord promptly when there are problems that need repairs. If you do all these things, your landlord has to fix problems that make the apartment unsafe and unhealthy to live in.

If your landlord won't make important repairs, call your city's code enforcement office or health department. You also have the right to pay for the repair and deduct the cost from your rent. For example, if it costs $300 to repair the sink and your rent is $800, you pay the landlord only $500.

Tenants often have questions about security deposits. How much can a landlord charge, and how long can he or she keep the money? According to state law, the security deposit for most apartments can't be more than twice the monthly rent. When the tenant moves out, the landlord must return the security deposit within 21 days if the apartment is in good condition. The landlord can use some or all of the security deposit to clean or repair the apartment, but only if the tenant caused the problem. The landlord has to return any money that he or she doesn't use for cleaning or repairs. If your landlord doesn't return your security deposit or keeps more than you think is right, you can talk to a lawyer and take your landlord to court.

A landlord cannot evict you from your apartment because you complained to your city's code enforcement office, made a repair and deducted it from your rent, or went to court about a housing problem. A landlord can never turn off your heat or electricity or put your things on the street. If a landlord changes the locks on your door, the landlord must give you the new key.

- A tenant does NOT have to B.
 - take good care of the apartment
 - fix problems that make the apartment unsafe
 - follow the rules in the lease
 - tell the landlord when the smoke detectors don't work
- Call your city's health department if your landlord D.

- If you pay $900 a month rent in Franklin County, your security deposit can't be more than D.
 - $900
 - $1,000
 - $1,600
 - $1,800
- A landlord CANNOT A.
 - turn off a tenant's heat and electricity

Communities

Some communities are friendly, and some aren't

There are many different kinds of communities around the world. Communities can be urban (in a city), suburban (near a city), or rural (in the countryside, far from a city).

Urban communities usually have many neighborhoods, where people often live close together in apartment buildings or small houses. Streets in these neighborhoods often have lots of people and many stores and businesses. People in urban neighborhoods often walk or take public transportation to get to places.

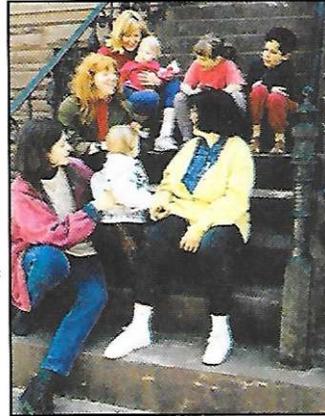

In suburban communities, people typically live in separate houses. Stores and businesses are not usually nearby, and people often have to drive to get there. Some suburban communities have public transportation, and others don't.

In rural communities, people often live far apart from each other, not in neighborhoods. There isn't usually any public transportation, and people have to drive everywhere.

Whether in urban, suburban, or rural areas, some communities are friendly, and others aren't. For example, in some communities, people know their neighbors, they help each other, and their children play together all the time. In other communities, people keep to themselves and sometimes don't even know their neighbors' names.

In the old days, most people around the world lived in small towns and villages, where they knew their neighbors. These days, more people live in large urban communities. Experts predict that in the future most people will live in "megacities" of more than ten million people. Will there be friendly neighborhoods in these communities of the future? Time will tell.

Describe your community. Is it urban, suburban, or rural? Is it friendly? In your opinion, what will your community be like in the future?

JuanR: I'm really looking forward to next weekend. Our family will be celebrating my grandparents' fiftieth wedding anniversary! Everybody in my family will be there—my parents, my brothers and sisters, and all my aunts, uncles, and cousins. We're going to have a big dinner at our home. Then, all the grandchildren will present a play that tells the story of my grandparents' lives together. (I'm going to be my grandfather when he was 20 years old!) We're going to have music and dancing, and we're going to give them a special anniversary present—a book of photographs of our whole family through the years. I'll tell you all about the party in my next message.

Send a message to a keypal. Tell about a family celebration you're looking forward to.
